RIT | College of Art and Design

How to request a Nuke student license for academic use

Erich S. Lehman - 2024-09-25 - How-to Articles

Important to Know (updated 9/2024)

- You will no longer get home-use codes from CADTech directly. You will need to go to the link below and follow the steps to get access to software.

- Foundry has switched to a third party verification app – Proxi.id – to streamline their process.

- CRUCIAL!! When applying for your free student license, enter the university name exactly as Rochester Institute of Technology . This will help avoid any issues when applying for your free license.

Click on link below to get your Nuke student license:

https://support.foundry.com/hc/en-us/articles/14075442828434-Q100680-How-to-apply-for-a-student-license

Your free desktop subscription will be valid until you graduate from the program or school.
(Yearly renewal may be required!)

If you have any technical difficulties please contact: desk@toonboom.com